*CLASSES

The best place to start looking is at this website here. This is all the CS and EECS courses offered at Berkeley. The classes aren't necessarily offered every semester, but most of them are. If you click on the course title, it will bring you to a more thorough course description. In general, students in their first two years take courses numbered between 1 - 99, and students in their last two years take courses numbered between 100 - 199. There's also a really good chart at this link which shows the course mapping with prerequisites.

Depending on what year the students will be in when they come, many of our students take one of the CS 61 courses (61A, 61B, or 61C), even if they have already taken some of the material back home, as we teach the material in much different ways. Students can take the upper division (100 - 199) courses if they have already completed the equivalent prerequisites. All of the CS courses require knowledge of at least programming language, though if students don't have that they can start with CS 10 and one of the CS 9 courses for learning the language.

In addition to courses in CS, our computer science students also take courses from mathematics, statistics, physics, and other related departments, so there are many options to select from.

 CALENDAR

March/April/May/June (Dates vary by university) – Students will be interviewed individually by Skype or other online means, to assess both English Language skills, as well as adequate fit for the BISP program. There are many departments to select courses from in BISP, but there are also certain departments that are not participating, so we need to ensure that students understand these limitations and can find courses they are interested in. After completing the interview, the official invitation letter will be sent within 48 hours. Date varies – BISP-LS deadline to complete and send the UC Berkeley Extension International Concurrent Enrollment Application online is two weeks after receiving the invitation letter. If additional time is needed, please contact us to let us know. IMPORTANT: Once UC Berkeley Extension receives your application, they will send you updates by email. You should enter an email address that you checked frequently onto your application. Once your application is processed, an acceptance packet will be sent to you or your international coordinator, at the address you listed on your application, by FedEx within 3-4 weeks after receipt of your application.

June/July/August - Check for emails from Jenny Cornet-Carrillo or Rachel Marquez or BISPinSoc with important information. Please save our program email addresses BISPinSoc@berkeley.edu or bisp@berkeley.edu in your email contact list, so that our emails do not go into a spam folder.

Late July/Early August - UC Berkeley Extension enrollment system is available online for you to set up your account and apply for courses. An email with step-by-step instructions on how to set up your account will be sent to you. We recommend setting up your account and applying for at least 4 of your courses, and at least 2 alternate courses, when you receive the instruction email. ALL BISP STUDENTS MUST BE IN BERKELEY BY AUGUST 21, 2019. If you are unable to be in Berkeley by this date, you may wish to defer your participation to a later semester.

August TBA – Mandatory orientation for UC Extension. Exact date and time to be announced at a later date.

August TBA – Mandatory orientation for BISP. Exact date and time to be announced at a later date.

August 28 – Classes begin. All Monday-Wednesday-Friday classes meet for the first time on Wednesday August 28, and all Tuesday-Thursday classes meet for the first time on Thursday August 29. Classes that meet only one day a week, meet for the first time on that day once classes begin.

September 20 – Deadline for BISP-LS students to alter their course schedule. Students usually know what courses they want to take by the end of the second or the third week of the semester, and we recommend completing your enrollment then.

December 16-20 – Final exams are during this week. You should not plan to leave Berkeley until your exams are complete.
